

INDIANA MILLERS PROPOSE NEW PLAN

Request That Hoosier Product be Used by Schools in Domestic Science Departments.

ALSO BY STATE INSTITUTIONS

Novel Advertising Plan to Overcome Fictitious Prejudice Against Winter Wheat.

Farmers in Jackson county, one of the best winter wheat territories in Indiana, will be interested in a move inaugurated by the millers of the state to induce the teachers of domestic science to use flour made in Indiana. The prejudice against winter wheat is based on fiction and the millers of the middle west are doing what they can to root it out.

Under the new school law the millers have an excellent opportunity to inculcate the lesson into the minds of the children. At a recent meeting of millers in Indianapolis a resolution was adopted calling upon the state superintendent of public instruction to recommend the use of flour made from home-grown wheat in the public schools.

Spring wheat is no better than winter wheat, the Indiana millers say, and the belief that it makes better flour is based upon mere fiction. The great millers of the northwest, through extensive and world-wide advertising, have created a deep-seated impression that spring wheat flour is superior. Indiana millers not being financially able to do the advertising which has popularized spring wheat, are the victims of a prejudice which costs them millions of dollars.

The governor has been asked to recommend to the 19 state institutions in Indiana that Indiana flour be used. Governor Ralston apparently looks with favor upon the movement. He will doubtless make such recommendations to the heads of these institutions.

It is pointed out that Indiana has to pay the taxes required for the support of state institutions and the public schools, and that when the corporations outside the state are called upon to supply the institutions it amounts to unfairness.

Since winter wheat makes just as good flour as spring wheat, there is no excuse for public institutions going outside the state for their supplies. Not only the millers but Indiana farmers will profit if Indiana wheat is used more generally throughout the state.

The Woodstock school taught by Miss Myrtle Gilbert held an exhibit of work done by the pupils to which the patrons of the school were invited Friday afternoon. Another feature of the occasion was a spelling-contest at which three representatives were selected to represent the school in the county contest to be held at Brownstown. The successful contestants were Daisy Carter, eighth grade; Zena Lane, fifth and six grades; George Pheasant, fourth grade. Miss Gilbert served refreshments and the afternoon proved very pleasant as well as profitable.

MRS. MARTHA ANN FOIST, AGED 66 YEARS, DIED FRIDAY NIGHT

Survived by 14 Children, 71 Grandchildren and 12 Great-Grandchildren—Funeral Sunday.

Mrs. Martha Ann Foist, widow of the late Randolph Foist, died Friday night at her home in Jennings county, two miles east of the Jackson county line, after an extended illness. She was born sixty-six years ago in Kentucky and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Taylor. She moved to this state when quite young and had lived in this vicinity for many years. She had a wide acquaintance in Jackson county and was highly respected.

Mrs. Foist was the mother of fifteen children, fourteen of whom are living. All of them, with the exception of one son, are married and live in this vicinity. She also leaves seventy-one grandchildren, and twelve great-grandchildren. One son died last October. The funeral will occur Sunday morning at Brown's Corner, in Redington township, and the remains will be interred at the Redington cemetery. The services will be conducted by Rev. G. M. Shuttis of this city.

PREFERS WIFE WHEN IT COMES TO ART OF MAKING PANCAKES

Bartholomew County Farmer Does Not Like Idea of Man Teaching Domestic Science.

Samuel Logan, of Ohio township, Bartholomew county, has filed a protest with the school authorities against the teaching of domestic science in the school of his district, or rather against that part of the science which has to do with pancakes. He told the school officials that when his children returned from school one evening lately they told him that the teacher had requested them to bring some flour to school the next day, as they were going to make pancakes.

"Just think of it," said Logan, "we have a man teacher and he wants to teach our children to cook. What I want my children to be taught is reading, writing and ciphering. My wife is the best cook in Bartholomew County and can teach our children all they need to know about cooking. Anyway, she can teach them better than any man can. None of that pancake business for me, and I am not going to give up any of my good flour to a man with which to mess over pancakes, especially when he is paid to teach my children book learning."

FARMER NEAR HENRYVILLE FATALITY WOUNDED BY WIFE

Mrs. Henry Hein Says She Fired Shot at Intoxicated Husband to Protect Her Children.

Henry Hein, a farmer living near Henryville, died this morning from a wound when he was shot by his wife. The shooting occurred at 7 o'clock last night, when, as Mrs. Hein says, her husband came home intoxicated and abused her and her two children, and for their protection she was forced to shoot him. Doctors were called at 12 o'clock last night, but it was too late to save Hein's life.

Hein was the father of five children. Some months ago his wife made application for a warrant for a lunacy inquest on her husband, but he was released. Since then there has been much quarreling between the two.

WILL DECIDE FATE OF 22 AMENDMENTS

Referendum Vote Will be Recorded Next November on Calling Constitutional Convention.

BEFORE TWO LEGISLATURES

Changes Must be Voted on at Election Before Final Action Can Be Taken.

The referendum vote next November on the question of calling a constitutional convention in Indiana will decide the fate of many of the 22 amendments to the state constitution started on their way by the 1913 legislature. Under the present basic law of Indiana, to amend it two successive legislatures must adopt the changes and a majority of the voters at an election must also approve the amendments before they can be effective. The 1913 legislature adopted twenty-two amendments along with the resolution providing for the constitutional referendum.

If the constitutional referendum is lost the 1915 legislature will hear the cry that the people did not want any changes in the present constitution. Possibly, therefore, the amendments already started on the legislative path will be dropped.

These propositions, briefly, are:

- 1.—To put an end to aliens voting on first papers, except those who have already done so.
- 2.—Giving the legislature power to enact a workman's compulsory compensation act.
- 3.—Proving that voters must be citizens of the United States and must reside in the state one year. Persons who are now voters but not citizens of the United States shall continue to be voters.
- 4.—Providing that township officers may be elected at any time provided by law instead of the general election in November.
- 5.—Providing that "The General Assembly may adopt special charter for the different cities of the state."
- 6.—Providing that "The governor of the state may veto any clause or clauses, item or items, in any appropriation bill, and may approve the residue item or items in any appropriation bill, and may approve the residue of such bill."
- 7.—Providing that all elective officers of the state, except judges shall hold office for four years, and no person shall be eligible to any such office for more than four years in any period of eight years.
- 8.—Providing that the county officers, except county commissioners and judges, shall hold office for four years and shall be ineligible for reelection.
- 9.—Providing that township officers shall hold office for four years and shall be ineligible for reelection.
- 10.—Providing that the judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, in circuit courts and in such other courts of special, general and appellate jurisdictions as the general assembly may establish.
- 11.—Providing that the supreme

SUPERVISORS OF ROADS ELECTED

New Law Provides Township Trustees Shall Not Appoint These Officials in the Future.

TWO IN JACKSON TOWNSHIP

Have Charge of Unimproved Highways—Pay Fixed at 25 Cents per Hour For Sixty Days.

Road supervisors, who have been appointed by the township trustees for a number of years, will hereafter be elected, the change having been made by the 1913 legislature. The first supervisors will be elected under the new law in November and will hold office for two years. They will have charge of all unimproved highways in the township in which they are elected and shall work under the direction of the township trustee.

Practically every township in the county is interested in the change. In Jackson township two supervisors will be elected. The law provides that where the township roads do not exceed ten miles in length the trustee shall be ex-officio road supervisor and that in no case shall there be more than four supervisors elected in any one township. Each supervisor shall receive pay at the rate of 25 cents per hour for not to exceed sixty days, except that in the event of one supervisor the township may extend the time the supervisor shall work to not more than one hundred and twenty days in any one year. Before such money is paid from the township funds the supervisor shall file a sworn statement specifying the number of days and the roads upon which such labor was performed.

The supervisors shall have charge of the work and keep in good repair the roads of their respective districts. They shall be subject to the control and direction of the township trustee, who shall see that their duties are faithfully performed, and who shall see that the roads of the township are dragged whenever the weather conditions shall make such work advisable. The supervisor shall also call out all persons in such district liable to work on highways therein, superintend the labor thereon, see that the same is faithfully performed and report to the trustee all fines and commutation money due such district and the same shall be collected by such trustee, and whenever such trustee shall deem it necessary he may make any change in the road districts that may subserve the public interest.

On dividing his township into road districts, or where any change is made therein, such trustee shall record a plat thereof in the highway record of his township, which shall show the roads and parts of roads belonging to each road district. Road districts shall not be held to include any part or parts or cities or incorporated towns that may be in the township in which such road districts are located.

All able bodied male persons, between the ages of twenty-one and fifty years, except insane, idiotic, deaf dumb and blind persons, shall be required to work not less than two nor more than four days on the roads as the supervisor may direct. Eight hours labor will constitute a day's work under the provision of the act. In repairing such roads preference shall be given to rural mail routes.

Such roads are not under the jurisdiction of the county highway superintendent who has control of improved highways.

NEW B. & O. S-W. BRIDGE NEAR MEDORA OPEN FOR TRAFFIC

Westbound Passenger Train No. 11 First to Pass Over The Structure.

The new bridge on the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad between Valonia and Medora was opened for traffic this afternoon. Westbound passenger train No. 11 due here at 2 o'clock was the first train to pass over the structure. The bridge over the Miami bridge east of Lawrenceburg is also about completed and will be ready for traffic about the middle of next month. Considerable trouble was experienced in building both bridges because of quick sand. The two bridges were washed out during the flood last March and when completed will mark the close of the repair work necessary because of the high water damage.

The girders at the approaches of the Medora bridge were placed on an angle as the bridgemen were unable to place them in their permanent position because of the temporary bridge. As soon as the new structure is open for traffic the temporary bridge will be removed and the girders will be straightened. The new bridge is much heavier than the one that was washed away and it is not believed that further trouble will be experienced there from high water even though the volume should be as great as it was in the spring which was unprecedented. The bridge contractors hope to finish the work in a very short time and remove their machinery.

SEYMOUR TAKES FAST GAME FROM SCOTTSBURG H. S. TEAM

Basket Ball Players Win Contest Friday Night by Decisive Score of 42 to 23.

The Seymour high school basketball team added another scalp to its belt Friday night by defeating the Scottsburg high school team by a score of 42 to 23. This is the second time the local boys have defeated the Scottsburg team this winter, the first game having been played at the gymnasium here early in the season. All the players were in good form and the game was fast and at times exciting. The basket throwing by the local boys was a feature of the game. A number of the points were recorded by foul throws.

The victory is encouraging to the Seymour team as the players had practiced hard for the contest with a determination to win back the laurels which they temporarily lost to Madison a week ago. However, there were several conditions which gave the Madison boys the advantage and which they will not enjoy when they play the return game in February on the local floor. The next game will be played with Franklin high school at that place next Friday night. A number of the pupils are expecting to witness the contest.

Misses Mary and Margaret Heaton, who are students at the Seymour Business College, went to their home in Hayden Friday evening to visit over Sunday.

GENERAL REVOLT NEAR THE CAPITOL

Rebellion Breaks Out in Haiti With Former Minister of Law Leading Insurrectionists.

REBELS TAKE PORT DE PAIX

Government Organizing Troops to Operate Against Rebels—Capital City Quiet.

Cape Haitien, Haiti, January 24—A general revolt has broken out in the city of Gonaives, capital of the department of Artibonite. The leader of the insurrection is Oreste Zamor, former governor of the department and at one time minister of war. The city is only sixty-five miles from Port-au-Prince, the capital of the republic.

General Desormes, who yesterday, at the head of the rebel forces, took Cape Haitien and Ft. Liberte, is marching with his army today on Hinche, forty-five miles southeast of Cape Haitien.

M. Pradel, Haitian minister of the interior, with the troops forming the garrison of Ft. Liberte, who fled from that place with the dispatch boats Pacificque and Nord Alexis, on Thursday, arrived at Port-au-Prince today. They reported that the town of Port de Paix also had fallen into the hands of the rebels. The Haitian government is organizing an army to operate against the rebels. The ministers express the belief that the movement will be short lived. Everything is quiet in the capital.

EXPERT WARDENS NEEDED TO PROTECT GAME BIRDS

Present System of Preserves Not Satisfactory, According to Well Known Authority.

Indianapolis, Jan. 24.—Game birds were scarce in Indiana this last hunting season, according to Gustav J. T. Meyer, a well known authority.

He pointed out a paradox in the situation. The state has laid out great preserves in which hunting is prohibited, and the season is that the state hopes birds will increase in number. Four years now these preserves have been unmolested, and still game birds are scarce as ever.

Meyer's explanation is that the natural enemies of the birds, excluding the hunter, about equalize the greater freedom of the birds on the preserves for propogate. The solution for the problem is (according to Meyer) for the state to put expert wardens on the preserves further to protect the birds.

Other game was plentiful, Meyer stated. Rabbits and squirrels were found everywhere in plenty.

The hunter is interested in the question, will there be more inviting grounds upon which the hunter is welcome? Meyer answers that the future holds encouragement. The game-preserve-without-warden-idea is causing much discontent, he stated. The results are likewise a disappointment and the preserves may not be renewed in many places when the time limit expires.

A Message to You, Kind Friend Don't be a Hold-back

The world is growing better every day. But the men and women who deny this fact are hold-backs to its progress. However, those who bewail our abandonment of old standards in matters social, political and medical would prefer to live today rather than yesterday.

There have been hold-backs in every age since the world's first day. They are obstacles in the path of human progress. Mind you, it is the individual who refuses to accept new truths who is the least benefited by them.

The first condition of success is an honest receptivity and a willingness to abandon all preconceived notions, however cherished, if they be found to contradict the truth. The history of all great truths shows them to have struggled through a period of determined opposition to their reception.

Only the better things permanently survive. Hence, Osteopathy has stood the test of searching investigation and has been weighed in the balance until the truth that it is Nature's best way to health shines forth with a light so convincing that its acceptance can no longer be resisted by the world of science and the world of pain.

Don't condemn new ideas simply because they differ radically from your present notions. Hold-backs are destined to stand still, though the world moves on. Life is a process of growth, and short sighted indeed is he who cannot observe the world's progress evidenced all about him. No man can be successful in health-getting, the same as in money-getting, who stands before the door of opportunity and fears to enter because of some new conditions that may meet him there.

Many sick people fail to regain health because they cleave to old traditions and superstitions. Thus they grope in the dark and refuse to accept Osteopathy as Nature's own hand-maid to health because it is new to them. They forget that our ancestors were not wiser than we and that old customs, old habits and old modes of life are giving way to new and better things.

You cannot live in the next century, but you can take advantage of the generous and good health that comes from Osteopathy, properly applied, if you will throw off the shackles of blind faith in old dogmas and decadent methods that have failed to keep step with modern progress.

Hold-backs will say impulsively they do not believe in Osteopathy. How can they believe or disbelieve without a knowledge of that which is to be believed. To disapprove without investigation is to act on ignorance and prejudice. Suppose you look into the merits of Osteopathy and give it a trial at the Spaulding Osteopathic Offices, 14 W. Second St., Seymour.

Like all other great truths, Osteopathy has had to run the gauntlet of ignorance and prejudice before it was allowed to declare its usefulness to mankind. It courts investigation and will stand the test and prove the best. To deny the efficacy of Osteopathic treatment as exemplified by the Spaulding Osteopaths in this community upon patients who have tried every other known remedy, would be as absurd as the juror's statement that he disagreed with the facts.

If you are struggling to get well and not improving under present treatment, do not be held back in the throes of misery by foolish prejudice and skepticism, but grasp the opportunity that Osteopathy offers you to get well and to keep well.

TO STOP ILLEGAL SALE OF "DOPE"

Two Well-Known Physicians at Muncie Indicted.

ON THE TESTIMONY OF BOYS

Investigation of Story Told by Alexandria Youths That Recently Led to the Indictment of a Marion Physician, Revealed a Trail Leading to Muncie, Where Lads Had No Difficulty in Securing Debasement Drugs.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 23.—As the result of investigations conducted by the grand jury, Dr. Casper L. Bacon and Dr. O. I. Reasoner, two of Muncie's well-known physicians, were arrested on indictments charging them with unlawfully writing prescriptions and selling a drug.

The probe here was started following the arrest in Alexandria of several youths who said they had purchased the "dope" tablets in Muncie and Marion. The boys were brought here to testify before the grand jury, and it was on their evidence that the indictments were drawn. It is said another indictment, charging the illegal sale of drugs will be returned against a prominent local druggist.

According to the story of the young men, they came to Muncie two and three times each week to buy "dope," sometimes getting as many as 200 tablets at a time. The city and county officials are aroused about the conditions revealed by the boys, and they are determined to stamp out the practice.

He says his selections will be limited to men who do not personally or through their friends urge their own appointment. The president said it was easy for him to determine whether communications urging appointments were spontaneous or part of an organized letter writing campaign.

The president directed that the widest publicity be given to his announced determination to eliminate all who put themselves forward as candidates for the board so as to save him the trouble of considering unsolicited advice of this character. The president expects that he will be ready to announce the appointees for the board by the latter part of February.

JAPANESE BILL GIVEN SETBACK

Hearings In Congress Suddenly
Called Off.

COMPLICATIONS ARE FEARED

A Hurried Tip From the State Department Altered the Program of the House Committee, Which Had Begun Hearings on the Pending Measure to Exclude Japanese From Our Shores, and Interest Is Expressed.

Washington, Jan. 23.—At the Japanese embassy it is declared that Japan's action in sending a cruiser to Mexico was due solely to the proper and adequate steps to protect the lives and property of any of its 3,000 subjects in Mexico which might be endangered by the disturbances in that country.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Hearings on the pending immigration bill, a feature of which is a provision which would exclude Japanese from admission to the United States, were suddenly called off by the house committee on immigration just as they were about to begin.

Fear of complications with Japan over the measure was said to be the reason for the action of the committee which followed an hour and a half of discussion behind closed doors and the receipt of a communication from the department of state, in which the effect the pending measure would have on existing treaties and agreements was thoroughly discussed. It was announced that the committee will give further consideration to the matter next Thursday and that the secretary of state in the meantime probably will be invited to give his opinion of the pending bill and its provisions affecting Japanese immigration.

The action of the committee developed, however, an apparent lack of an understanding between the house members and the White House and the state department. It is understood that one of the reasons why the committee dismissed the awaiting speakers on the measures was the statement made in the Japanese parliament Wednesday that Japan recognized the necessity of considering "some other way" of settling the California controversy, the replies of the United States to the Japanese protest having proven unsatisfactory. Yet, referring to this same statement which is said to have inspired the committee with fear of complications, Secretary of State Bryan said that he understood precisely what the Japanese minister of foreign affairs referred to by his phrase "some other way," and that having been informed in advance of what was to be announced in the Japanese parliament, the ministerial statement caused him no anxiety. This statement by Mr. Bryan was regarded as removing all ground for anxiety over the Japanese government's announcement with reference to the California controversy, and the committee's fears on this point seemed without basis in fact.

It was likewise understood that the committee interpreted the state department's report on the pending bill as a warning to go slow in consideration of the measure. The committee assumed that it had come from Mr. Bryan, but the latter not only denied that he had had any communication with the committee regarding the pending bill, but also declared that no communication had been sent from the state department on that subject.

It was learned, however, from those who saw the departmental communication, that it contained pointed references to the effect the pending measure would have on the immigration situation as regards Japan. The letter afforded ground for the inference at least that it might be "wiser to amend it so as to leave unaffected the gentlemen's agreement" by which immigration from Japan is now restricted by the Japanese government.

The pending bill provides for the exclusion of all aliens not eligible to citizenship by naturalization. This would exclude all Japanese, with the exception of the exempted classes, such as students, merchants and travelers. There is no doubt of this sweeping disbarment of Japanese proving objectionable to Japan, as it is based on the same principle and precisely the language employed in the California land law, already a subject of controversy. The present arrangement by which the privilege of keeping emigration to the United States down to a minimum is entrusted to Japan is satisfactory to that government, as it is a concession to her authority and dignity, whereas wholesale exclusion of Japanese on the basis of their racial ineligibility to American citizenship would raise questions of the equality of the Japanese and of Japan's national honor and prestige.

Threaten to Defeat Bill.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Bitter opposition to the Alaskan bill has developed in the house. Southern members, opposed to government ownership, have organized to defeat the measure. The leaders have informed the administration that the Alaskan bill is in danger and that it will be beaten when it comes to a vote unless there is a change of the situation.

FURTHER DETAILS GIVEN BY SULZER

Grand Jury Hears Story of Alleged Conspiracy.

MURPHY DEFENDS HIMSELF

"Liar and Perjurer" Is Tammany Leader's Answer to the Story Which Deposed Governor Told in the John Doe Proceedings and Later Repeated Before Grand Jury in New York, and Charge Now Will Be Sifted.

New York, Jan. 23.—Mr. Sulzer replied to Mr. Murphy's statement by saying: "Mr. Murphy seems to have lost control both of his temper and of the truth." He asserted that he could produce witnesses to support his assertion that Mr. Murphy talked to him alone in Washington on March 5.

New York, Jan. 23.—William Sulzer told the grand jury that he was removed as governor as the result of a conspiracy. That conspiracy, he said, was framed because he had refused to do the bidding of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and join a criminal campaign to loot the state.

The grand jury showed itself ready to probe the conspiracy charge to the bottom. Sulzer was asked to produce whatever documentary proof he had to support his charges. Sulzer promised to do so and District Attorney Whitman has announced himself as ready to sift every bit of legal evidence bearing on the charge.

Sulzer repeated to the grand jury the story he had told before Magistrate McAdoo in regard to the alleged visit of J. E. Gaffney to James C. Stewart, wealthy canal contractor, seeking $150,000 as a bonus for two promised contracts for the building of a section of the barge canal.

Prior to that, however, Charles F. Murphy made an emphatic statement in which he called Sulzer a liar and a perjurer and said that every word of the ex-governor's testimony in regard to "Gaffney or war," and other things was absolutely false. He said he is ready to waive immunity and testify in the John Doe proceedings.

There is a strong probability that Murphy will be a witness. Whether it will be on a subpoena or voluntary appearance or on an invitation of Whitman remains to be determined in the course of the investigation. Senator O'Gorman, who was mentioned by Sulzer as the person who told him that Gaffney was Murphy's bagman, sent word to Whitman that he is ready to testify. The plan, however, is to keep O'Gorman back for a few weeks until other witnesses have been heard, and he can clinch or throw down much of the testimony that already has been given. Another important development was the unofficial information that reached Whitman to the effect that James C. Stewart and Gaffney are well acquainted. Whitman will make a careful inquiry into that feature, Stewart having said he could not identify Gaffney as the man who had asked him for the $150,000.

The developments were regarded as having an important bearing not only upon the question of the charges against Gaffney in regard to seeking a commission from Stewart as a reward for any contracts that might be awarded to him, but in line with the big idea that Whitman has in mind of trying, if possible, to link a number of politicians in one indictment charging a general conspiracy to loot the state.

Whether such a thing will be possible Whitman does not say, but he is carefully sifting every bit of evidence not only in regard to one or two men, but with the view of bringing a blanket indictment.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1914.

Down in Lawrence and Jackson counties the Democrats are having a hard time in getting along together. C. P. Butler, editor of the Bedford Democratic paper and county chairman, has refused to issue a call through his paper when ordered to do so by the committee, he doing it in order to defeat John Underwood, candidate for prosecutor and a brother-in-law of Governor Ralston. The Democrats of Jackson and Lawrence counties agreed to have the primary and the call was issued in Jackson, but Butler refused to publish it and the committee got up enough money to have it placed in the Republican paper as an advertisement and the primary will be held despite the fact that the county chairman refused to issue the call. It was this same editor that fought the Democratic candidate for mayor at the last city election and it all goes to show that there are but few Democratic office holders who can stand prosperity. As soon as the party came into power they began fighting one another and it is still going on in many places. The primary fight has just started in Putnam and will begin to warm up gradually as the time for the primary gets nearer.—Greencastle Banner-Times.

In 1911 Albert Miller while strolling through the woods on the farm of Lewis Leach in Pierce township, found in a hollow log two young buzzards, and by means of a hooked stick drew them out of the log and attached to each of them a tin tag bearing the date and his name and address. Nothing much was heard of it in the neighborhood until last Thursday when Mr. Miller received a letter from a man at Hamilton, Ga., stating that a friend of his seeing one of the birds flying about with something attached to its neck had shot and killed it and as the tag bore Mr. Miller's address he wrote to him telling him the bird's fate.—Salem Leader.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Lines have placed a number of large engines on the Louisville division and as a result the freight trains have been much longer and heavier recently. This morning a train consisting of fifty flat cars was taken through the city. Because of the smaller engines in use much lighter trains have been hauled over the Pennsylvania Line than over the B. & O. Southwestern.

GO-TO-CHURCH ONCE MAKES SECOND TIME EASIER

Observance of Go-to-Church Sunday is Being Planned in All Parts of the Country.

The cities both large and small in all parts of the country are planning to observe Go-to-Church Sunday on Feb. 1. In some of the suburbs of Chicago it is planned to have every telephone in town ring at 9 o'clock Saturday night and the work spoken "Go to Church Tomorrow." They are planning also for every grocery wagon to carry a banner inscribed "Go to Church."

In places where the plan has been tried the reports indicate not only an increased attendance, but also that many church letters have been brought out of trunks and a real advance in religious life has followed. The Feb. 1st date is the first attempt at a nation-wide observance of the day and the idea has been taken up enthusiastically in all directions.

Rev. F. E. Clark D. D., the founder of the Christian Endeavor says:

"Let no captious critic discourage us by saying, 'What will it all amount to—this going to church one Sunday in the year?' Ah! that is not all it will amount to, in many cases. As staying away from church once makes it easier to stay away again, until to stay at home becomes a habit, so going to church even once will often make it easier to go again, until, going, instead of staying away, becomes the habit. Many men and women need only to have the lazy habit of indifference to church punctured by a single reversal of their usual Sunday practice to see how much they have missed of spiritual, intellectual, and social value."

"But even if that first Sunday of February was their only church day for some, it would be just so much better than nothing."

AN INCESSANT COUGH.

A severe cough is always a grave symptom. It may not indicate organic disease of the lungs. Even though the cough is a functional disturbance it is of sufficient gravity to demand prompt attention.

The dropping of mucus from the back part of the nose into the throat indicates nasal catarrh. Sometimes this goes on a long time before the patient pays any attention to it. It is stated on good authority that mucus dropping into the throat in this way is apt to excite catarrh of the stomach. At any rate, the condition ought to be corrected as soon as possible.

Mrs. Bourland, of Frankston, Texas, found after using Peruna that not only did the incessant cough disappear, but the dropping of mucus into the throat had also ceased. Read what she says:

"For twenty-three years I was a constant sufferer from chronic catarrh. I had a severe misery and burning in the top of my head. There was almost a continual dropping of mucus into my throat, which caused frequent expectoration. My entire system gradually became involved, and my condition grew worse. I had an incessant cough and frequent attacks of bilious colic, from which it seemed I could not recover. My bowels also became affected, causing alarming attacks of hemorrhages."

"I tried many remedies, which gave only temporary relief, or no relief at all. I at last tried Peruna, and in three days I was relieved of the bowel derangement. After using five bottles I was entirely cured."

"I most cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna to any one similarly afflicted."

People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets. Ask Your Druggist for Free Peruna Lucky Day Almanac for 1914.

PUT THE "OPERATE"

IN CO-OPERATE!

That Mr. Local Dealer, is the day's lesson in a nutshell.

Be the man who put "OPERATE" in co-operate.

In other words, when the manufacturer whose goods you carry comes into your local newspaper with his advertising, join the "get busy brigade."

Say to yourself: "The public is going to be interested in these goods. I must let them know they can be got at my store."

Show them.

Be "Window-wise!"

The public likes to trade with a man who supplies what it wants. It is always willing to pay fair profits for fair service.

Put "operate" in co-operate and you will be the man who put the "cash" in "cash register."

If any manufacturer who is interested in co-operative advertising will address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, it will be glad to answer questions.

A QUESTION OF FORTIFICATIONS

Could We Hold the Hawaiian Islands?

SEEMING LACK OF CONFIDENCE

House Appropriations Committee Has Been Hearing Some Mighty Interesting Testimony Along the Line of a Demand For Increased Fortifications, Which Would Indicate Apprehension on Part of High Officials.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Recent testimony before the fortifications subcommittee of the house appropriations committee discloses a seeming lack of confidence on the part of high officials in the ability of the United States to hold the Hawaiian islands in the event of an international war which might find its scene of activity in the Pacific ocean. It also disclosed that for a considerable period the war department has been straining every effort to render the Hawaiian archipelago as nearly impregnable as possible. To that end there have been transfers of heavy ordnance from continental United States to the islands. These transfers have been effected as an emergency measure and without seeking congressional action or specific appropriation.

The question of these transfers of heavy ordnance and ammunition was brought to the attention of the committee through a letter addressed by Secretary of War Garrison to Chairman Fitzgerald, in which Secretary Garrison asks for a modification of the regular form of appropriation bills by suggesting the inclusion of a proviso authorizing the transfer to the insular possessions of such ordnance.

General Wood appeared before the committee and his testimony has just been made public. Questioned regarding the situation in Hawaii, he expressed himself in this way:

"The reasons for holding Honolulu or the island of Oahu so securely rest primarily on the protection of the naval base, and in a secondary way in preventing the occupation of the island and its possible use as a basis of operations against our western coast and possibly the Panama canal.

"The navy, after a very careful consideration of the whole situation, decided to establish at Pearl harbor a naval base of very considerable importance. The task of securely defending this naval base against any raiding attack or attack in force which might result from operations following temporarily the loss of sea control on the Pacific necessitated, in the case of the army, a system of fortifications. These fortifications include seacoast defense and a very strong line of land defense."

Strengthening the personnel of the defending force in the Hawaiian islands was advocated strongly by General Wood. The present force in the islands consists of 296 commissioned officers and 7,169 enlisted men. General Wood urged that this number be more than doubled and proposed as a garrison for the island of Oahu 505 officers and 15,665 enlisted men, an increase of 228 officers and 8,496 men.

General Wood's advocacy of this vast increase in the defending force at the island of Oahu is predicated upon a change of mind which has come to him recently. The fact was brought out in a series of questions by Chairman Fitzgerald, who said:

"General Wood, my recollection is that you explained last year that in the general plans of the defense of Hawaii there were certain troops always intended to be held at readiness at San Francisco?"

"That is exactly the case," replied General Wood. "The idea was to hold a large part of the garrison at San Francisco and possibly at other Pacific coast points, but principally at San Francisco, with the idea of sending them over in time of threatened invasion, but that plan, in view of developments of a possible hostile naval strength in the Pacific, soon came to be regarded as absolutely unsound. It meant the shipment of troops across 2,000 miles of sea under conditions which if they preceded hostilities, would certainly precipitate them. Such a movement could not have been mistaken as anything other than an act preliminary of war on our part, and if an enemy was really contemplating an attack he would attack before these troops could be moved."

A BATTLESHIP ON THE WAY

Haytians to Be Reminded of American Policy.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The armored cruiser Montana has been ordered to Port Au Prince, Hayti, to protect foreign interests and back up the American policy in the crisis created by revolutionary successes in the north. Madison R. Smith, the American minister to Hayti, reported that the government was seriously menaced by the revolutionary advance and asked that a warship be sent. The United States gunboat Nashville is enroute from Port Au Prince to Cape Haytien, which is held by the revolutionists, and indications are that the United States will interpose with a reminder that the American policy is opposed to the recognition of government established by violence instead of elections.

GEORGE W. GOETHALS

Panama Engineer Picked as Man to Clean New York City.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

GOETHALS WILLING TO TAKE NEW JOB

Provided Certain Conditions Are Complied With.

New York, Jan. 24.—Colonel George W. Goethals, the man who built the Panama canal, has agreed to be police commissioner of New York if the administration at Washington will give him his retirement from the army and if certain legislation can be put through in New York to give him complete power over the personnel of the police department.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Reports to the effect that Colonel George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, has conditionally accepted the post of police commissioner of New York city were received here in official quarters with incredulity at first and later with amazement. Even Colonel Goethals' warmest friends found it hard to believe that he had considered seriously the police commissionership, and when the reports became more definite the question immediately asked by everybody was:

"What has happened between Goethals and the Wilson administration that has led him to consider this place before he has realized the ambition that he has cherished for years of turning over a perfected transoceanic canal?"

The report came as a complete surprise to President Wilson, and it was apparent that the White House was considerably disturbed over the prospect of losing Colonel Goethals at this time. The reports, if they accomplished nothing else, served to disclose definitely that it is President Wilson's intention to name Colonel Goethals as head of the new civil government in the canal zone and thus to give him complete control over the opening and operation of the great waterway.

The belief here is that Colonel Goethals, if he has given any conditional acceptance to Mayor Mitchell through George W. Perkins, will withdraw this acceptance as soon as he is definitely informed that President Wilson intends to name him as head of the new civil government of the canal zone.

BODY LITERALLY COOKED

Small Son of Blacksmith Roasted by Coals From Forge.

Wabash, Ind., Jan. 24.—The three-year-old son of Homer Emerick, a blacksmith, is dead from injuries received when for five minutes the child lay under a heap of burning coals before assistance arrived. The boy had gone to the blacksmith shop, where he was engaged in play when he upset a portable forge. He was thrown to the floor and pinned beneath the weight of the forge, from which rolled the coals until his body was covered. The child's cries attracted his father, after he had been roasted for fully five minutes. Emerick hastily extricated the boy and a physician was summoned, but all efforts to save his life were of no avail. The body from the head to the knees was literally cooked.

DISTURBED OVER JAPANESE ISSUE

Administration Refuses to Comment On Situation.

ALL EXCHANGES ABANDONED

Both Sides to International Controversy Rigidly Adhering to Their Original Positions, the Further Exchange of Notes on the Subject Has Been Definitely Given Up, Being Regarded as Wholly Useless.

Washington, Jan. 24.—President Wilson has invited the members of the foreign relations committee of the senate to the White House to dine next Monday night. There are a number of treaties pending and others about ready to be submitted to the senate, and the Mexican and Japanese situations are sufficiently important to be the subject of such a conference.

Washington, Jan. 24.—There is every reason to believe that the revival of the discussion of the Japanese issue is a matter of regret to the administration. Secretary of State Bryan refused to comment on the recent happenings in the situation which are the result of the publication in the United States of the address of the Japanese minister for foreign affairs on relations with the United States and with Mexico and the suspension of hearings on the pending immigration bills which contain clauses designed to make the entry of Japanese into the United States more difficult.

Mr. Bryan declined to answer any questions with reference to the Japanese situation, but reiterated his previous statement that he is "hopeful."

No evidences of any progress being made toward a settlement of the controversy over the California alien land law can be found in any of the official quarters in Washington, most concerned in the matter. The exchange of notes has been definitely abandoned as useless, both sides adhering to their original positions.

ONE WAY TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Secretary Wilson Has a Suggestion on Asiatic Question.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Secretary of Labor Wilson has suggested in a letter to Speaker Clark that a provision by law for the exclusion of aliens unable to pass the physical test required of recruits for the United States army might solve the problem of Asiatic immigration for this government. Secretary Wilson's recommendation was inspired by information which he said had come to the department of labor "that word has gone forth through India and certain portions of Asia and the adjacent islands that this is the promised land."

Secretary Wilson's letter dwells at length upon the undesirability of the Hindoo and expresses the belief that the time has come for dealing with the Asiatic droves with finality.

HELD ON FORGERY CHARGES

Sensational Allegations in Case of Prominent South Bend Man.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 24.—Albert G. Harlin, real estate broker, one of the best-known men in South Bend, was arrested on charges of forgery. Unable to furnish bond of $2,000, he is being held in the county jail.

Up to a few weeks ago, when he filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, confessing an indebtedness of $102,967.87, Harlin was supposed to be worth $250,000. The arrest of Harlin, according to Prosecutor Montgomery, will be followed by a grand jury investigation, in which, he states, alleged embezzlements amounting to at least $150,000 will be uncovered.

Harlin's victims, it is said, were mostly widows and children who were beneficiaries of estates which he handled.

A Bloody Exhibition.

Milwaukee, Jan. 24.—Ad Volgast and Joe Rivers boxed a ten-round draw here last night. They fought and mauled each other all over the ring. Rivers' nose bled from the second round on, for in that session the champion nailed a left over his opponent's nose that brought the blood in streams.

COMPARISON IS NOT FLATTERING

Criminals and Insane of Indiana On Increase.

REPORT OF CHARITIES BOARD

In This It Is Shown That in the Last Decade the Population of State Institutions For Criminals and Defectives Has Increased More Than 21 Per Cent, While Population of State Has Increased Only 7.3 Per Cent.

Indianapolis, Jan. 24.—In the last ten years the population of all the state institutions in Indiana and of those public institutions supported in whole or in part by the counties of the state, has increased 21.2 per cent, while the total population of the state has increased only 7.3 per cent in the same period, according to Amos W. Butler, secretary of the board of state charities.

That defectives and those who forcibly become inmates of such institutions have been steadily on the increase in relation to the total growth of population throughout the country has long been the contention of students of the benefits of eugenics and other deep students of sociology and public economics. The figures of the Indiana board, given in its annual report, show unmistakably the trend of the present-day civilization, although some mitigating explanations are attempted by attaches of the board.

These persons contend that the facilities for gathering statistics on these institutions have increased in the last decade and that states and counties have found themselves gradually able to take care of more of the defectives within their borders at public expense than heretofore. Set up against this, however, is the fact that many defectives are taken care of in the homes, or do not find their way into public institutions for other reasons. Private institutions, harboring the same classes that must be taken care of publicly when dependent, also care for many defectives that do not figure in the totals, it is estimated.

At the close of the last fiscal year in Indiana the state institutions and those supported in whole or in part by counties (such as jails, poor asylums and orphan's homes) had 17,494 inmates. This total was 350 more than on the same day a year before, and was 3,066 more than on the same day ten years ago.

THE INDIANA EXHIBITION

At Coming Panama Exposition Is to Be Elaborate.

Indianapolis, Jan. 24.—With the committees appointed to have charge of the various exhibits, preparations will be begun shortly to arrange for a display of Indiana products at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco next year. Lieutenant Governor O'Neill will be at the head of the committee on manufacturing, electrical appliances and machinery. Indiana manufacturers are desirous that this state have a creditable exhibit. Indiana automobile manufacturers are planning an elaborate exhibit of Hoosier-made cars.

Charles W. Fairbanks will be chairman of the committee on agriculture, horticulture, forestry and live stock. He has been active for a long time in arousing interest in forestry, and he has always been interested in the advancement of agricultural interests. It is being planned to have a state corn show to select the corn to be exhibited at San Francisco.

James F. Ensle will arrange for the exhibit of Indiana building stone. The Indiana building itself will represent a display of Indiana stone, because stone taken from the Bedford quarries is to be used in its construction.

Homer L. Cook will be chairman of the committee on education. Indiana ranks high in educational work, and Mr. Cook is planning for an exhibit that will show the advantages of this state's educational system.

Mason Duncan will be chairman of the committee on mines and mineral products, and Will R. Wood will arrange for a display of woman's work. Stephen B. Fleming will be at the head of the committee on literature and fine arts.

T. C. McReynolds was named chairman of the state building committee and E. B. Stotsenburg will be chairman of the transportation committee.

The Driver Didn't Stop.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 24.—Walter Sauer, aged nine, was run over by an automobile here and was injured internally. He was picked up unconscious, and probably will die. The driver of the machine did not stop his car. His name is not known.

Mrs. Margaret H. Elliott, sister of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, is seriously ill in her home at Berkeley, Cal.

CHARLES K. HAMILTON

New York, Jan. 23.—Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, died suddenly at his home in this city. His wife was aroused by Hamilton's groaning and hurriedly summoned a doctor, but the aviator was dead before the doctor reached the house. The cause of death was internal hemorrhage. Hamilton was twenty-eight years old.

BAD ROAD WORK LEADS TO CHARGES OF GRAFT

Wholesale Indictments Returned in New York.

Riverhead, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Charging state officials and contractors with conspiracy, grand larceny and malfeasance in office, twenty-four indictments have been handed up to Supreme Court Justice Kapper by the special grand jury which since August last has been investigating the construction and maintenance of eight highways in Suffolk county.

All of these roads were constructed within the last two years. Every one of them has broken down. John A. Hennessy went over them the first of last May. A month later he and his assistants were digging under the surface to see what the contractors had done and what the inspectors and engineers had approved. Without going into the statistics on imperfect construction they found that out of an aggregate bid price of $310,000 on the eight roads there was a shortage in assigned materials alone of $69,000.

There were seventeen indictments for conspiracy, six for grand larceny in the first degree and one for malfeasance. They involved eight contractors, seven state officials and two corporations.

One of the men indicted is William W. Hubbard of Good Ground, neighbor of Charles F. Murphy and staunch follower of former State Senator Bayliss, who takes care of Mr. Murphy's political interests in Suffolk.

SOLVED TICKLISH PROBLEM

The Marshalls Manage Invitation List in Masterly Fashion.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Real diplomacy was shown by Vice President and Mrs. Marshall in their management of the invitation list for the first of the four brilliant receptions which they will give during the winter season. Mrs. Marshall's success in avoiding any cause for grief to those not asked to the initial reception is thought by experienced Washington hostesses to be masterly.

More than 600 guests, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, were received in the gold room of the Shoreham, where the hosts live. One of the most feted couples in public life, the vice president and Mrs. Marshall have made innumerable friends in residential and official society.

How to entertain all of them in the limited space of the ballroom of the hotel was a problem. Vice President and Mrs. Sherman were accustomed to give one big reception during the winter, with the result that even their spacious home was too packed for comfort.

Intent on avoiding overcrowding, Mrs. Marshall divided their list of friends and acquaintances into four parts and had distributed them among four receptions. No one was left out, and the guest list is so varied that each reception will be attended by the cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps and the senate and contingents, together with a large representation of the army and navy and residential society.

PRESENT OPERATIONS OF STOCK EXCHANGES

Will Not Be Disturbed By the Congress.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The president has just let it be known that he has no intention of asking congress to pass a law regulating the operations of stock exchanges. The president regards the problem of stock exchange regulations as one entirely distinct from those which he has endeavored to handle in the legislative program outlined in his address to congress.

In disclosing his purposes as far as the stock exchanges are concerned the president made the statement that he will confine his recommendations to congress for legislation to the subjects to which the Democratic party committed itself in the Baltimore platform, and the regulation of stock exchanges was one of these.

A PLEA FOR BETTER ROADS

Present Method of Building Highways a Disgrace to the State.

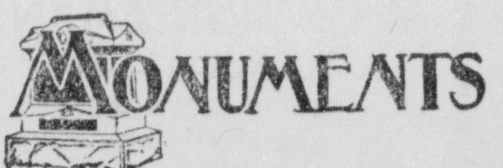

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—That only skilled engineers should be allowed to have charge of roadbuilding and repair work on the highways of the state was the assertion of Clarence A. Kenyon of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Good Roads association, in an address on "Good Roads" at the opening session of the Indiana Engineering society.

Mr. Kenyon declared that the present methods of building highways are a disgrace to the state and that millions of dollars have been wasted in vain attempts to have good roads.

"Roads are worn out in Indiana even before the bonds which were issued for their construction have been paid for," said the speaker. "The trouble is that millions are spent by those who do not understand the work which a political and unbusinesslike system of government allows them to perform."

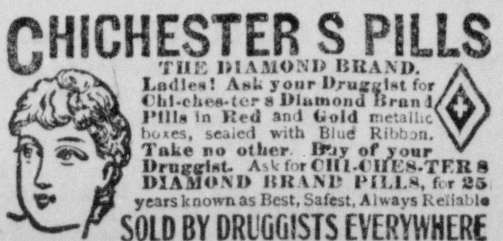

County surveyors from all parts of the state met and appointed a committee to draft a bill to be presented to the next legislature, providing for a uniform compensation of county surveyors.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Darwin K. Anthony.

ABOUT noon on Monday Edith Cortlandt received a caller. The name she read on the card her maid handed her gave her a start of surprise and set her wits whirling in speculation.

She was greeted by a gigantic old man with a rumbling voice. He was pacing back and forth with the restlessness of a polar bear.

"How do you do, Mrs. Cortlandt?" he began at sight of her, his big voice flooding the room. "I'm sorry to disturb you under the circumstances. I knew your husband slightly, and I've heard about you. I extend my sympathy."

She bowed. "When did you arrive?" "Just now. Came across in one of those blanked joy wagons—fifty miles an hour. I know everything, madam. What I didn't know before I landed I learned on the way across the isthmus. So don't let's waste time. Deuce of a position for you to be in—I understand, and all that—and I'm sorry for you. Now, let's get down to business, for I must get back to New York."

It was impossible not to feel Darwin K. Anthony's force. It spoke in his every tone and action. It looked out from his harsh lined features and showed in his energetic movements. He was a great granite block of a man, powerful in physique, in mind and in determination.

"In what way may I be of service to you?" she inquired coldly.

"I want my boy," he said simply, and she began to see that underneath his cold and domineering exterior his heart was torn by a great distress.

"You know all the circumstances of course?"

"I do. That's why I came straight to you. I know you're the keystone of the whole affair, so I didn't waste time with these other people. Kirk's a blanked idiot and always has been. He isn't worth the powder to blow to—excuse me—I mean he's just a ne'er-do-well. But I suppose I'll have to do my duty by him. I just had to kick him out. Sorry I didn't do it sooner."

"If you have cut him off why do you care what becomes of him?"

Darwin K. Anthony's eyes dimmed, but his voice rose fiercely. "He's my boy, and I've a right to treat him any blanked way I please, but nobody else is going to abuse him! These Spaniards can't do it! I'll teach them to lay hands on my boy! I don't care what he's done. They've got to give him up. And he's going back with me. He's going home. I—I—want him."

"Why have you come to me?" she queried.

"Because you must know the truth if anybody does, and I want your help." His voice softened suddenly, and he regarded her with a gentle kindness that was surprising. "I've heard all about you and Kirk. In fact, I've known what was going on all the time, for I've had a man on his track night and day. You may know him—Clifford? Well, he followed Kirk that night after the supper to your husband, but Anson didn't dare call him to the stand at the hearing for fear this Alfaro would perjure more of his black and tans."

"So Clifford is your man?"

"Yes, I took him off my system and sent him down here as soon as I got Kirk's idiotic, impudent letter—" The old man began to sputter with indignation. "What do you think he wrote me, Mrs. Cortlandt? He had the impudence to turn down a good job I offered him because his wife might not like our climate? Thank God, he had sense enough not to do that!"

"Then you don't know?"

"Know what?"

"That he is married."

"D—nation!" roared Anthony furiously.

She nodded. "A Miss Garavel. They were married a week ago." She broke down miserably and hid her face in her hands. He strode to her with a light of understanding in his eyes. Laying a great hand upon her drooping head, he exclaimed with wonderful softness:

"My dear Mrs. Cortlandt, I'm very sorry for you, indeed I am. Now—now, try to face it squarely. All good women are brave, and you're a good woman. We both love him, and I know we can save him if we pull together."

"Yes, yes!" She raised her drawn, white face eagerly to his. "It will only take a word, but I have been like a mad woman. I couldn't bear to give him up, and when I learned the truth I thought I could let him—suffer. But I couldn't. He is the first and only man!"

"I know." He patted her in a way that said more than words.

"I couldn't have stood out much longer."

"Then you have proof?" His face was wild with eagerness.

"This. Take it quickly. I only found it last night. It had been mislaid in the confusion. I meant to give it up. I really did." With clumsy fingers she drew from the front of her dress an unsealed letter and handed it to him. "Stephen was not a bad man, you see, and he had no intention of wronging an innocent person."

Darwin K. Anthony's pallor matched hers as he read the sheet; then he exclaimed weakly: "Thank God! Something told me to come straight to you. Something always tells me where to find the heart of things."

Kirk was considerably surprised that afternoon when a sergeant and two policemen came to his cell, signifying that he was to accompany them. He could not make out where they were taking him, and, despite their unusual politeness, they were dense to all inquiries. The coach drew up at last before a large, white building, and he was told to descend. Up a flight of stairs he was escorted, his pulses quickening with apprehension, down a long corridor and into a large room, where he saw Runnels, Colonel Johnson, Anson, Clifford, a dozen or more Panamanian officials and—he stopped in his tracks as his eyes fell upon a huge, white crowned figure that came to meet him.

A certain harsh yet tender voice pronounced his name. He felt his hands crushed in his father's palms, found the old man's arm about his shoulders and saw the deep set, steel blue eyes he loved so well wet and shiny. A sudden sense of security swept over him, banishing all his fears.

"My kid!" the old man said, shakingly. "How have they treated you, Buster?" It was a nickname he had given his son when he was a sturdy, round faced urchin of eight.

"You came, didn't you?" Kirk said, in a voice not at all like his own.

"Of course I came, the instant Clifford cabled me that these idiots had arrested you. By —! They'll sweat for this! How are you anyhow, Kirk? Dammit, you need a shave! Wouldn't they give you a razor? Hey, Clifford, Colonel Johnson, come here! These scoundrels wouldn't give him a shave. I suppose you're hungry, too; well, so'm I. We'll be out of here in a minute, then you show me the best place in town, and we'll have a decent meal, just we two, the way we used to. I'll pay the bill. Great Scott! But I've missed you, Buster!"

"Wait, dad," Kirk was smiling, but his heart ached at his father's emotion. "I'm a jail bird, you know. They think I—killed a fellow. But I don't care much what they think now."

"That's all over," Clifford broke in. "We've squared that, and you'll be discharged in ten minutes."

"Certainly," said the father, "Cortlandt shot himself. Anybody but a blithering Spanish ass would have known it at the start. We have a letter he wrote to his wife an hour before he did it. She just found it and turned it over. She left here a moment ago, by the way, all broken up. She's a great woman, Kirk. That's not all, either. Clifford followed you that night and knows you didn't go near Cortlandt. Oh, you should have seen 'em jump when we flashed it on 'em all at once, and they learned who I was!"

"But those men who swore they saw me?"

"Bah! We've got that little fellow with the mustache, and both his witnesses. If they don't send him up I'll run in a shipload of my brakemen, and we'll push this isthmus overboard and him with it."

"I knew you could fix things."

"Fix 'em, fix 'em! That's easy! Say, how have you been getting along anyhow?"

"Great!"

"And you married one of these Panamanians, eh?" The father scowled. "Lord, I can trust you to make a fool of yourself."

"Say, dad. She's only—so big." Anthony junior indicated his wife's stature, smiling rapturously.

"Love her?"

"Do I? It's fierce."

"Humph! You'll have to get over it. I'll pay your debts and take care of you, but I can't stand a mulatto around me."

"There aren't any debts, and she's not a mulatto. She's a—dream."

Some time later Kirk found himself in the open sunlight a free man once more, with Darwin K. Anthony and Runnels on either side of him. But before he had gone a block he halted suddenly, saying:

"Williams! I'd forgotten him and his warrant."

"He's fixed," Runnels explained. "While your father and Mrs. Cortlandt and Colonel Johnson were getting you out of jail Clifford and I told him the truth. He's rather a decent fellow. They have caught the real Jefferson Locke or whatever his name is."

"No!"

"Yes, a week ago. He landed in Boston. Couldn't stay away from his own country any longer. Williams hadn't heard of it."

"What has become of Higgins?" Kirk inquired of his father.

Anthony senior exploded:

"Oh, he's back scorching up the Tenderloin, as usual. But you'll have to cut him out or I'll leave you here. That's final, understand?"

"I intend to stay here anyhow."

"Huh?" The old man turned with a start. "I'm dashed if you do!" Then savagely: "What do you suppose I came down here for? I'm lonesome. I want you to come home."

Kirk smiled craftily and looked at Runnels. "Well, what can you offer? I'm doing pretty well as it is, and I can't afford to lay off."

His father, in turn, appealed to the acting superintendent. "See! It's nothing less than blackmail. Is he any good, Mr. Runnels?"

"If there weren't so much politics in this job he'd be master of transportation of the P. R. R. That's doing pretty well, isn't it? We're both going to quit and look for new work."

"Do you drink, Kirk?"

"I haven't even had an alcohol rub since I left New York. But, dad, if you place me you'll have to take care of Runnels too. He knows more about railroads than you do."

Mr. Anthony grunted a trifle skeptically at this and murmured: "He must be a bright young man. I suppose what he doesn't know you do. Well, how would you both like to come north and give me some lessons?"

"Do you mean it?" they cried in chorus.

"I do."

"Oh, there's Allan too. He'll have to go."

"Any cats and dogs you'd like to have drawing salary from me? Now, let's go somewhere and eat. I haven't tasted anything to speak of since Clifford's message came."

"If you don't mind, I—I'd like to stop at the Garavels' for a minute," Kirk said longingly, and his father scowled. "I'd forgotten this—wife of yours."

"She's not there," Runnels hastened to say. "I've tried to find her, but I was told she was out at the country place."

"Then I think I'd rather drive out there than eat. Won't you go with me, dad?"

"Well—yes! I want to see this banker fellow, and—I'm not so blanked hungry, after all. We'll settle this thing right now."

The afternoon sun was still an hour high when Kirk Anthony came down the hill from the Garavels' home and crossed the meadow toward the forest glade he knew so well.

Chiquita was there, huddled upon the seat where they had rested together, one foot curled beneath her like a child, her head bowed down disconsolately. From one brown hand, now drooping listlessly, a few wild flowers had scattered, and her slim figure was clad once more in the stiff, coarse denim dress of blue. Her other hand was toying with her beads mechanically, as if the fingers had learned their task from long practice. Her dusky eyes were fast upon the lights that hovered in the pool.

As if to prove that the spot was really peopled by kind spirits, a gentle voice seemed to whisper the news to her and she turned to find him smiling at her. She rose and met him with her hands outstretched, her face transfigured.

After a time she leaned backward in his arms and said gravely: "You see! When one says many, many prayers the good saints always answer. The padre told me that I should never cease until you came, but I grew very tired, senior."

"And you never doubted me?"

"Oh, no!"

"I'm free, you know?"

"Of course! What else were my prayers for? Had my father allowed I would have gone to your prison, but he forbade it, so I had no choice. But every hour I prayed that he might give me leave, and I think his heart was yielding."

"I'm sure of that," he told her, "for I have just come from him."

It was some time later when the sun was dipping that voices sounded outside the wall of verdure, and Kirk heard Andres Garavel saying:

"Of a certainty I shall try that experiment, senior, for the ticks in this country are a pest to cattle. A little to the right and you will find the path. So!"

An instant later the two white haired men appeared.

"Hello! There you are, eh?" Darwin K. Anthony exclaimed gruffly. "Where's that girl?" He paused and let his hostile eyes rest upon Gertrudis.

She saw a great, forbidding giant of a man scowling down at her with eyes like Kirk's, and she came forward timidly, holding out her hands. She was smiling up at him faintly.

"You are Keek's father, yes? You are the Senior Antonio."

HENRY SIEGEL.

Head of New York and Boston Stores That Failed.

New York, Jan. 23.—Henry Siegel, head of a chain of dry goods enterprises, most of which failed recently, took the witness stand in the receivership proceedings and testified that he was practically penniless. "I used to draw $4,000 salary every month from my stores," he said. "Now I have no income. I haven't a cent."

gently in his arms. When he looked up his eyes were wet and his deep lined face was working.

"I couldn't wait any longer," he apologized humbly to his son. "I had to come and see her."

"And then I hope you will like me," she said in her grave, quiet way.

"Your father has told me everything"—Garavel laid a hand upon his new son's shoulder—"and we have become good friends already. I fear I owe you a great apology, my boy. But if I consent that you take my little girl away to your country will that be reparation?"

"Then you will let her go with us?" Kirk cried happily.

"If she doesn't go I'll stay," Anthony senior rumbled. "I—I don't see how you ever did it, you're such a blamed fool. Now let's go back to the house, it's sundown."

"We'll be along directly," his son assented.

"There are chills in the evening air," Mr. Garavel protested.

"I'm sorry, but we were waiting for the fairies. They were almost in sight when you frightened them away."

Gertrudis nodded. "It is quite true, Senior Antonio. We heard them all about, everywhere." She placed her little hand in Kirk's, then checked her father's remonstrance, saying:

"Oh, it is quite proper for us to walk home together, even in the dark. We are married now, you know."

"Come on, Garavel," exclaimed Darwin K. Anthony. "You understand how it is." Together they went out through the fragrant path a little way. Then old man Anthony paused and called back to his son wistfully. "But I say, Kirk, don't stay too long; we're lonesome."

THE END.

Huerta Government Tells Them They Must Fall Into Line.

Mexico City, Jan. 23.—The members of the cabinet have no time to give out news, and devote all their time to admonishing reporters that the government will suppress all newspapers in this country and all correspondents of papers in other countries who do not favor the present administration.

There are rumors in circulation of an increase in taxes all kinds. These have caused a most pessimistic feeling, while the government's lack of funds to pay the army or postal money orders and other obligations makes things look desperate.

SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN

Prints More Home News Than Any Other Paper In Jackson County.
THAT'S THE REASON IT HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION.

Take a young man, full of force and fire, born and bred in the North, though son of a Southern father. Bring him up in utter ignorance of the passionate ideals of the Southland, of his father's own youth and of the tragic duel which sent him forever from his people. After the death of his father, let the loss of a fortune and social standing in New York send him back to the beautiful Piedmont Valley of Virginia to reopen the old historic family mansion and to fall in love with the daughter of the woman for whose sake his father had suffered ostracism and had lived and died in exile, and things begin to happen.

That is what Hallie Erminie Rives has accomplished in her wonderful story, "The Valiants of Virginia", a story of which the Washington Star says "begins with a fascination which it maintains to the end."

Miss Rives has put into her story the breath of the open South, its sunshiny reaches of tobacco fields, the sparkle of its streams and the pipe of its forest feathered folk. It abounds with the gentle humor of its characters - some of them as delightfully quaint as Southern negro country life can furnish. The love story holds the passion of sacrifice and service and happiness to the end.

The opening chapter of the "Valiants of Virginia" will appear in the Republican Monday, January 26th. You will want every chapter from the very beginning. Have your neighbors order the Republican so they may enjoy the story with you.

The week has past and nothing has been heard from Congressman Lincoln Dixon about that post office appointment. Those Democrats who were certain that an announcement would come from Washington this week are now expecting that word will be received before next Saturday night. Because of the fight that is on for the office considerable interest is manifested in the Congressman Dixon's decision and the anxiety among the applicants has reached the high mark.

ANNA BELLE'S Sleighride (Continued)

Dear Friends:—I didn't have room to tell you all about my sleighride last week, nor could I show you all who were in the big bobsled. Of course, I can't show every one of them this time, for mother, father and several others are not shown. Grandma believes in doing things right and there's never anyone left out when he is the entertainer. We didn't have seats in the sleigh, but sat down in the soft straw, which reminded me very much of going on a regular hayride. How I wish you could have been along with us, for I'm sure you'd have enjoyed it very much.

Then, after we came home, Grandma had pumpkin pie and all kinds of goodies all fixed up ready to eat. Of course she was with us but she was so thoughtful and had everything arranged before we went out. I know your dear grandma must be as good as mine and that you love her dearly. My! isn't it a treat to go over to grandma's?

The postman has just brought a great bunch of letters from friends, and you may know how I'll enjoy reading them these cold, wintry days. I'm doing nicely in school. Averaged 98 on all my studies last month, which I think is very good. How are you doing in your school work? Fine, I hope. Listen, why don't you write me oftener than you do, for I'm always so glad to get even a few kind words of advice or telling me of the good work you are doing in your Sewing Society. I'm getting such good reports from our Societies now, and I hope yours is one of them. If you haven't sent for your Certificate of Membership yet why not do so now? Just sit down and write me, care of this paper, enclose a two-cent stamp for postage and I'll be glad to send as many as you wish for yourself and members. Write today to your loving,
